Commerce Encircles

Giant orange monsters roared across the wooded land encircling Dorman to create a development of restaurants, banks, speedy marts, service stations, and apartment complexes.
Drones of hard-hat construction crews worked slavingly on the site of Westgate Mall.
Students were forced to adapt to traffic jams and detours when the influx of workers increased.

Farmers

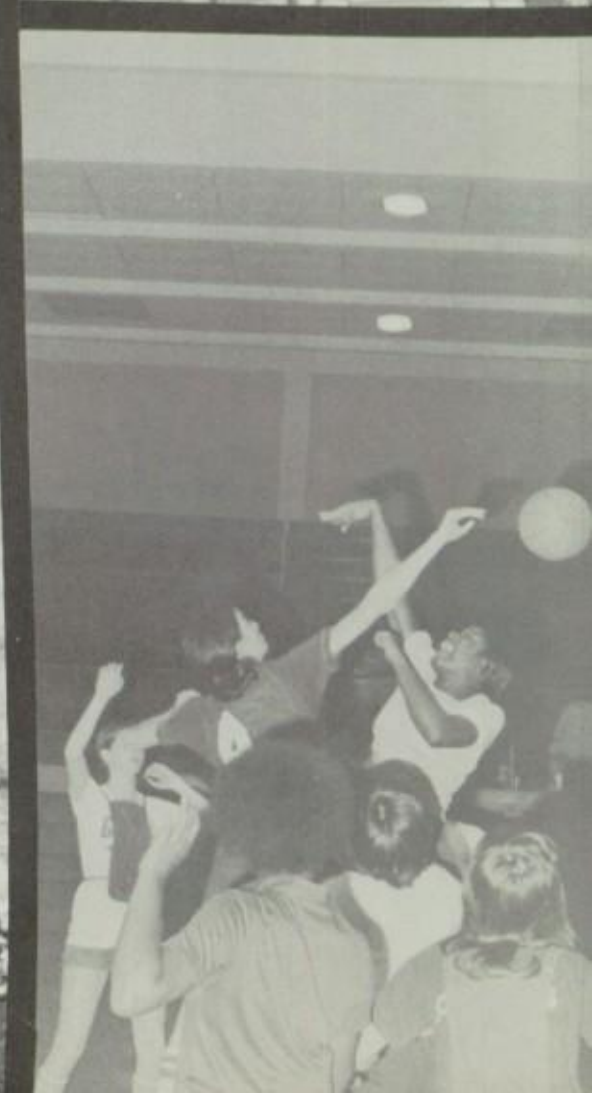

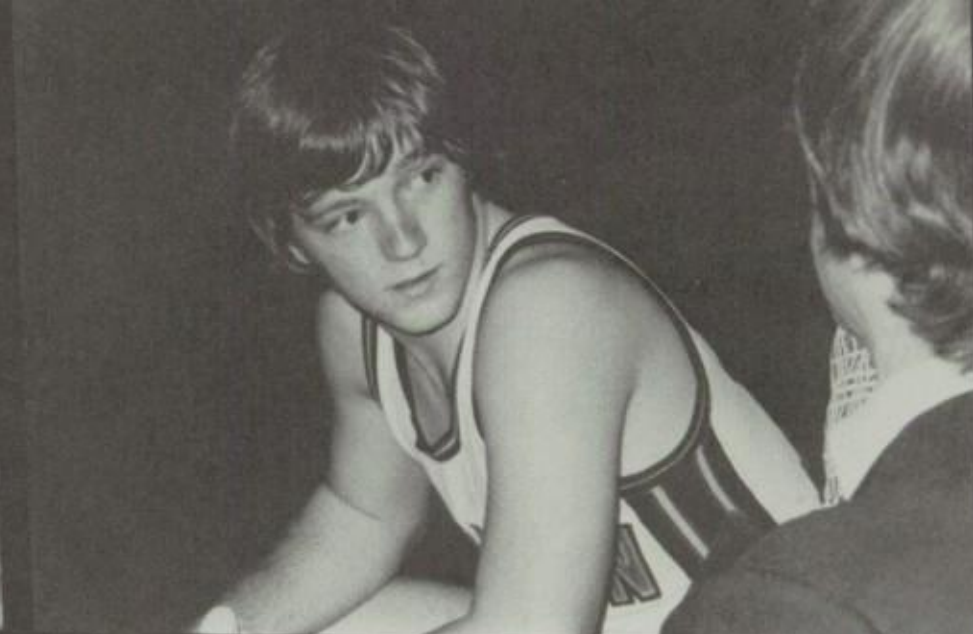

Is It

As commerce extended to the west, students were repeatedly reminded that they were no longer surrounded by farm lands and forests. New streets appeared from cornfields, and wooded farm lands gave way to landscaped lawns. Students questioned whether the advantages of the transformation would outweigh the disadvantages . . . would it be worth it?

Worth It?

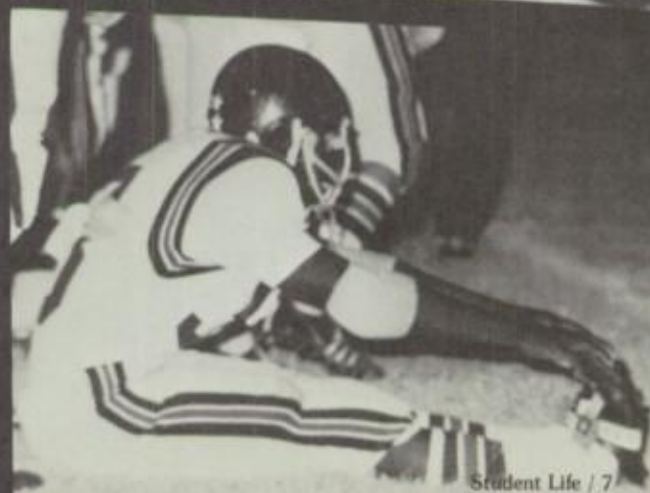

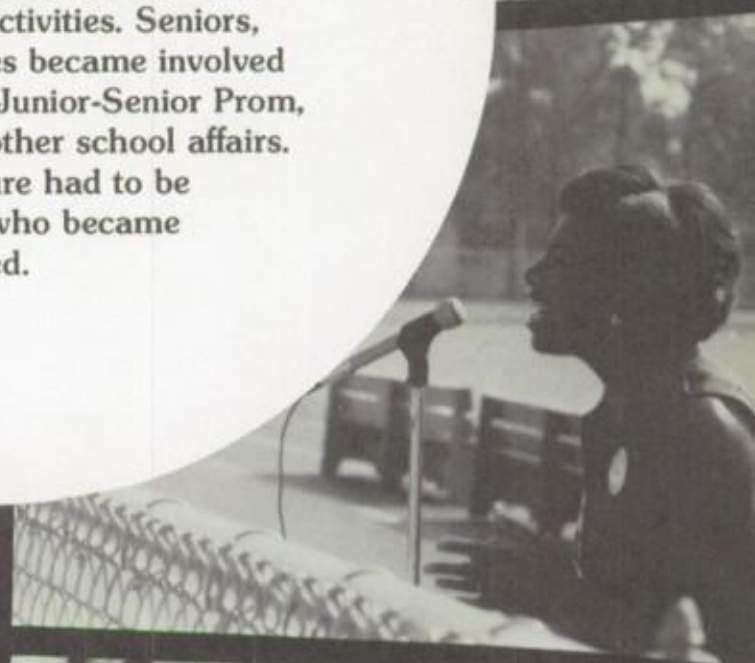

Revolution

Students turned to athletic events both as participants and as spectators. A sports expansion gave students the opportunity to excel in many fields.

The year revolved around curricular and extra-curricular activities. Seniors, juniors, and sophomores became involved in Christmas programs, Junior-Senior Prom, graduation, and many other school affairs.

Success and failure had to be accepted by all who became involved.

Summer Ends Too Soon

Summer vacations had various meanings for students as they moved away from their regular school routine. Although short as usual, students tried to make use of their time before returning to school in the fall.

Band members kept their instruments tuned and the Ben-Gay ready. As the marching practice began, tired muscles and exhaustion would follow. Color Guards met mornings and afternoons, while trying to recruit new members.

Football teams sweated out the long summer with high hopes for a winning season.

Chorus members busied themselves making music while on tour in Washington, D. C.

Other students went on vacation trips and held summer jobs. BUT—on August 19, everything came into focus as registration began and students looked ahead to new courses and coming activities.

Camps Galore

"Are you sure you've got everything? What about your toothbrush? Shampoo? Deodorant?" Call or write us, so we'll know you got there." Last minute details, instructions, and goodbyes were said as student organizations journeyed off to camp in hopes that they would receive help. For the majority it meant long hours of practice, rotten food, and sleepless nights; however, students still found time to socialize.

The Drill Team attended Georgia Tech for the National Drill Team Assoc. Aug. 5-9. Band Camp was held in N. C. where practice perfected drills.

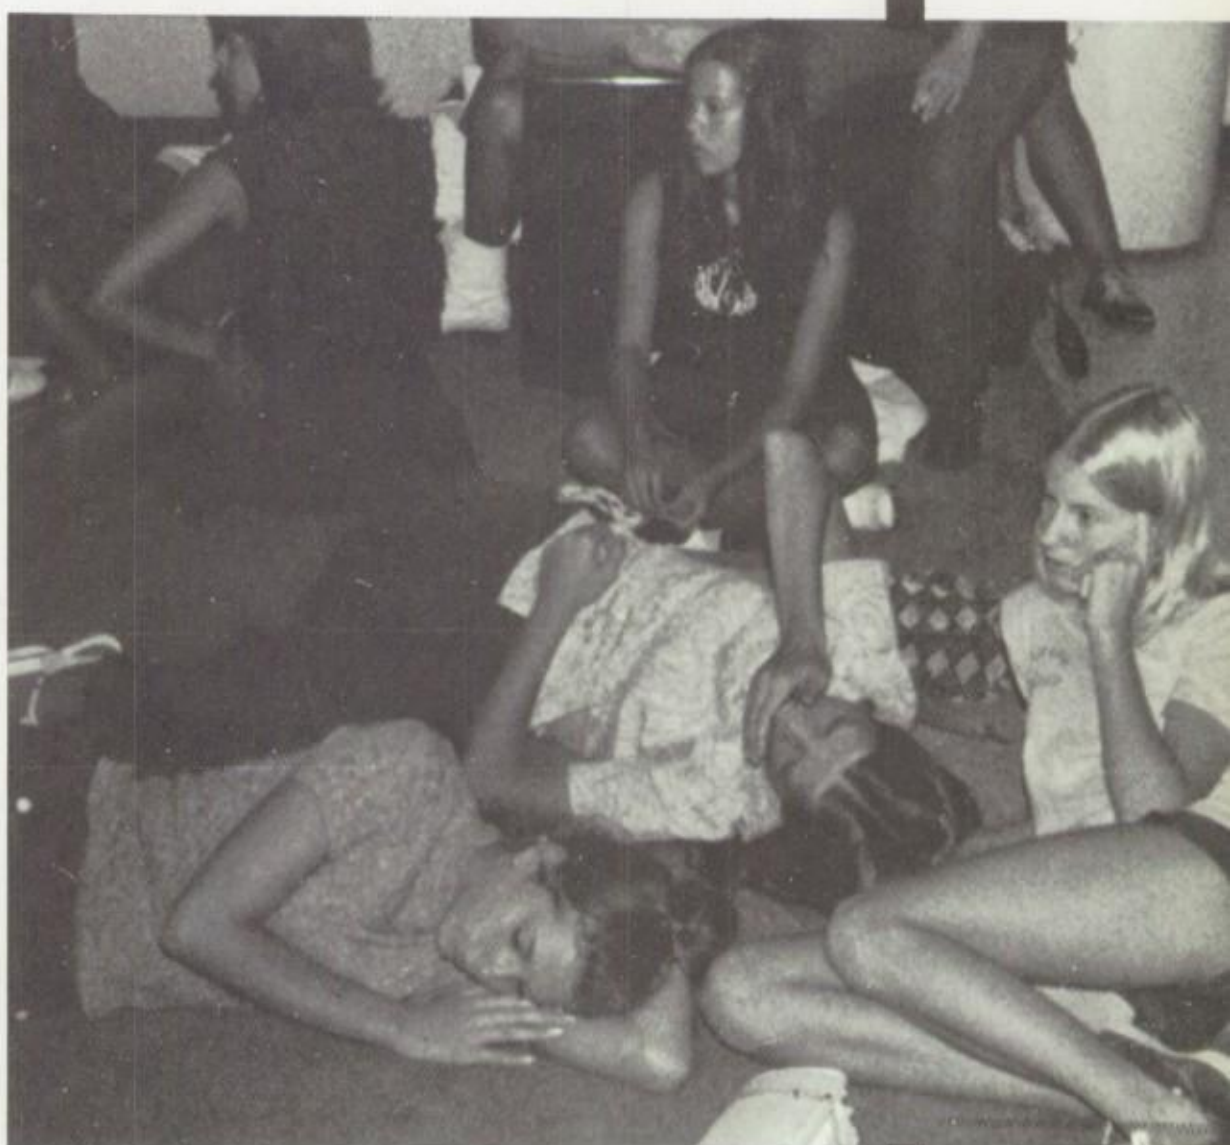

Janet Hatchett and Fordham Brewer were awarded outstanding old bandmen awards. New bandmen awards went to Cindy Taylor and Dana Kelly.

VANGUARD staff members went to Bonclarken for a week in July. Besides planning for the new book they also received a superior rating on the '74 book.

CAVALIER staff took a graphic arts class at R.D. Anderson enabling them to print their own paper. By working and practicing different cheers and chants, cheerleaders received the "Best Overall Squad" award from Am. Cheerleader Assoc.

Triple Option Conquers

Corrections on plays are made after a Dorman time-out is called.

This was it! We had a new coaching staff and were assigned to a new region. The team had attended a week of football camp, practice was running fairly well, and everyone appeared to be ready. Anticipation filled the crowd as they gathered on September 13 at Byrnes High School. Dorman struggled throughout the game, but to no avail. Spectators sat motionless as penalty after penalty was slapped upon their team. The Rebels blanked the Cavs 28-0. Dorman fans left the field with a variety of mixed emotions: "Was this a preview of the coming season?" "If so, here we go again!"

But on the following Friday the tables turned—Dorman blasted a strong South Mecklenburg team 14-0. The Cavaliers found Gaffney's defense hard to break but managed to tie 7 all. From then on it was smooth sailing. A new triple option offense boosted some of the highest scoring in the history of the school. A solid defense kept opponents' scores low, resulting in the shut-out of 4 teams. Tension mounted as the season came to an end.

An untraditional game was played between traditional rivals as Dorman and Spartanburg met to vie for the Region II title. Events, both school spirited and publicly advocated, lead to the big night. Declared the "Game of the Week" by the state newspapers, coaches from area high schools and colleges turned out. Advance ticket sales totaled high and refreshment sales were the biggest ever. The gates were opened approximately 3 hours before game time and spectators came bundled and food laden, ready for the long wait. By kick-off time there was standing room only.

On November 15 Dorman became the only region team to score two touchdowns against the mighty Vikings.

The Cavaliers got their first taste of the state playoffs as they lost to a powerful North Augusta team 32-14.

J.V.'s Have Winning Season

The Dorman Squires continued the annual winning streak by closing the season with a 7-0-2 record. The squad out-scored their opponents by the amounts of one to 48 points. November 14 brought the Optimist Game between Dorman and Spartanburg . . . and it also brought rain. Although mud and a slippery football made it difficult to gain much yardage, Dorman manipulated the first touchdown. The Norsemen were held to the final seconds of the game, but managed to tie with a bomb. During the half-time ceremonies, Optimist winners and runners-up were announced. Four sophomores were elevated to the varsity team and Ray Nash was given the Outstanding Sophomore Award.

Toboggans and gloves were worn to keep the chill off heads and hands of JV cheerleaders.

Anticipation filled spectators on November 8, before the announcement of the Student body's choice for homecoming queen. Following tradition, the 1974 Homecoming Queen was crowned during the half-time ceremony. Out of the ten members of the senior representatives, Candy Fortenberry was crowned queen by Mr. Allen O. Clark. Janet Hatchett was chosen Maid of Honor with the second highest number of votes. Colleen McNeally, Gail Boler, Leslie Babb, Debra Jones, Debra Tillotson, Marsha Tuck, Vicki Lee and Paulette Spearman were the other senior members of the court.

Chosen by the junior class as their representatives in the court were Susan Bowman, Sheila Dampier, Julie Garrett, Donna Fortenberry, Linda Smith, and Robin Rhodes were the sophomore representatives. All of the young ladies were escorted by members of the J.V. football team.

Adding to the festive feeling of the night, Dorman played a fantastic game against their homecoming opponent, Hillcrest, defeating them 48-0.

ACA camp readied the varsity cheerleaders for the season. They brought back new and creative cheers to be performed at pep rallies and ball games. Sixth period was spent making posters and practicing routines and chants.

The squad earned money by selling cakes, and cupcakes. "Cavalier" buttons could be purchased by students in a variety of forms. Cheerleaders also sold programs at Wofford home football games as a money-raising project. A total of 18 members, both varsity and junior varsity sponsored "Blue Day" and pep rallies.

Ross Heads FCA

The Block D Club, composed of athletes and cheerleaders, met when they could to discuss various aspects of athletics. Although business meetings were few, members kept busy participating in different school sports.

Athletes of football, basketball, track, golf, baseball, and wrestling met monthly as a chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes. The thirty-one members, under the direction of Coach Jim Ross discussed the trials and tribulations of athletics today.

The football banquet climaxed the most successful season the Fighting Cavaliers have ever experienced. Families, dates, and special guests enjoyed dinner and award presentations on December 16 in the cafeteria.

Pat Sullivan, quarterback for the Atlanta Falcons and winner of the 1973 Heisman Trophy, opened the program with a few words on team work and sportsmanship. Miss Margaret Worden recognized cheerleaders; after which the coaches recognized all varsity and junior varsity football players.

Numerous awards were given for outstanding performances. The final award was made by Leslie Timms, who presented Coach Fogle with a plaque naming him HERALD-JOURNAL Coach of the Year.

Cavs - 3rd in Sertoma

The Cavaliers' basketball season was opened with their participation in the Sertoma Tournament. Third place was captured by the team, lead by Coach Ronnie Arnold. High scoring against Greer made it possible for Dorman to cruise by with an easy victory.

In a double-header Dorman and Spartan High played host to conference rival Eastside and a strong Bolles High team from Jacksonville, Fla. Cavaliers came out with victories over both teams. In two matches between Byrnes and Dorman, the Cavs lost by 2 points each time; 31 personal fouls against the Cavaliers aided the Rebels in their victory. Chuck Bagwell and Hugh Dodd fouled out in the 4th quarter. Region play began with Wade Hampton who fell victim to the "Hot-Shooting" Cavaliers.

Senior Paul Fraley captured the Herald-Journal "Player of the Week" by scoring 21 points in the 88-50 victory over Eastside. Dorman players kept Eastside down by a strong defense. Cavaliers lead by as much as 40 points in the second period and showed one of the best offensive games of the season.

Greer fell to the Dorman Cavs in a Region II AAAA game with a score of 87-55. Effective control of the backboards and a fine showing of offense gave the Cavaliers their win equaling their entire total number of wins for last year. Senior player Roger Cohen finished as high scorer with 24 points and top rebounder for the night with nine.

Dorman was not as fortunate January 28, as the Spartanburg Vikings defeated the Cavs who had 23 fouls for every one of the Vikings.

Things were touch and go in the game with the Hillcrest Rams. Three free-throw shots in the final 32 seconds of the game gave Dorman the game and second place in the Region. The Cavaliers showed their second lowest scoring contest by a score of 50-47.

Getting off to a slow start, the Squires lost their first three games, but a transition began for the better with the Wade Hampton game. Coach Jim Norris noted the team lacked consistency, good offense, and height—their tallest player being 5'11". Two high scorers, Reggie Meadows and Eric Sullivan, contributed an average of 12 points a game. The Squires played their best against Spartan High, shooting 50% in the second half, conquering the Norsemen 37-22. In the game with Parker the JV's showed their alertness by winning with the large margin of 35 points. The squires, averaging 45 points a game, showed aggressiveness and good defense by the team as a whole throughout the season.

Lady Cavaliers Triumph

Girls' basketball made a reappearance after an absence of six years. The fifteen member team, consisting of only 3 seniors, became known as the "Lady Cavaliers."

They played on the same Region 4 schedule as the boys; performing between the Junior Varsity and Varsity games. At their debut, the girls gave Dorman something to cheer about by crushing Spartanburg Vikettes 54-12.

The coaching of Miss Sherry Lowery brought the Lady Cavaliers into a winning season. The biggest portion of victories was gained by wide margins while only a few "close" games had to be contended with.

Joy to the world-NO EXAMS!

The annual Christmas drive included student council members using free periods to help sort canned goods.

Santa stops by to reward the student body with goodies before Christmas holidays.

Coach Buddy Bridges enjoys the food and a time of relaxation while faculty members are given a holiday drop-in by the school administration.

Christmas spirit is instilled by the presence of the tree which is annually set up in the lobby.

'Twas the week before Christmas
When all through the halls,
The students were looking
But couldn't find Santa Claus.
The doors were decorated
With glitter and snow,
By homeroom contestants
To make a big show.
Rejoicing students
In Wings A, B, and C
Exclaimed with excitement,
"No Exams for me!"
Parties were frequent
And studies were few,
As time drew closer
To bid Dorman adieu.
Canned goods were collected
And put under the tree,
To later be distributed
Filling workers with glee.
Teachers were treated
And given a break,
As a drop-in furnished
Coffee and cake,
Carols were heard
From the Chorus and Band
On the day of assembly—
Just as was planned.
Students were surprised
When out of the blue,
Came a big box of candy
And Santa Bomar, too.

A well-filled Christmas boot, complete with lights, adds to the beauty of the lobby.

Dorman fans could attend a winter attraction besides basketball—wrestling. Only two members of the team had previous experience, so conditioning was the first step to getting off on the right foot. Pinnings, escapes, and reversals had to be learned. Twelve members, qualifying in their weight classes, participated in the meets. On individual competition, matches lasted for three 2-minute periods. Individual scores earned team points. Meets usually lasted an hour and a half unless quick pins were executed. This automatically ended a match, awarding that team six points. Diets were kept by members in order to stay in their weight class. Four opponents were in last year's state top-ten. A 5-5 season showed the potential and eagerness of this young Dorman team.

Because of better facilities, all but one of the meets were held at home in the John L. Martin Stadium. Sprinting and the two-mile run improved over last year by the strong participants in these events.

Coach Paul Macolly also joined the team for the first time as coach. Cavaliers returned once again to Three Pines to host opponents and hold practices.

The first match of the year took the team to the Furman Invitational on March 7. Due to late tee-off time, rain caught them on the fifth hole and the Cavaliers revert to the Club House. The tournament shortened to nine holes on the weather conditions.

The sports scene changed when the Cavaliers were put into Region II AAAA. As games continued, more spectators turned out to watch the Fighting Cavaliers. The football team ended its season by traveling to Augusta for the State Semi-finals.

Girls' basketball and wrestling were added to winter sports and proved successful as the girls ranked #1 in the region and wrestling broke even with a 5-5 season.

Spring sports were two weeks late starting, but performance wasn't hindered by the delay. Schedules were lengthened so seasons lasted into May.

The change in coaches (in every sport except varsity basketball), and the expansion of the athletic program was reflected by a successful sports-filled year.

April 19, 1974, became a magical night for many, as students and their guests donned tux and evening gowns.

A Touch of Spice

Paper flowers, made by the home economic classes, butterflies, and streamers garished the gymnasium for the theme, "In the Garden" on April 19, 1974. Committees were set up to decorate and clean the gym. "Spice" provided music for juniors, seniors and their dates until the curfew hour, twelve midnight. Faculty members chaperoned and served punch in the cafeteria.

Approximately 400 proud and excitement filled seniors gathered as a class for the last time on May 25, 1974. Nervousness was prevalent as the tenth graduating class of Dorman High was lined up for the processional, marching to the traditional sound of "Pomp and Circumstance."

Three members of the senior class addressed the class and visitors. The graduates were then called by name to receive their diplomas and Bible, a gift of the Spartanburg County Foundation. After they had returned to their seats, Kim Thompson, class president, led them in changing the tassels. The audience sang the Alma Mater with the class of '74. The program then ended as the graduates marched out.

Celebrations took place after the ceremony, but the graduates soon realized that the end was also a beginning. The rest of their life was ahead of them and it all began on the last Sunday in May.

Surroundings

Clubs and classes surrounded students with challenges and responsibilities as well as relished moments. Long hours after school were consumed by students while attending meetings, practices, and helping in community services. Days were met with such occurrences as the dissection of frogs and the sentencing of murderers in "mock" trials. Semester and nine weeks' changes helped to break the monotony and provided new classrooms and classmates.

The Last 10 Days In Nixon Crisis

WEDNESDAY, JULY 31: St. Clair, obeying court orders, listened for the first time to the Nixon tapes. What he heard, left no doubt in his mind, his client, Richard Nixon, had withheld from him direct evidence that he had helped begin the Watergate cover-up. St. Clair, deeply shocked at the revelation and torn because he had unwillingly deceived the courts and the House Judiciary Committee, went to sleep with what he learned.

THURSDAY, AUG. 1: As the House set the date for its impeachment debate, White House spokesmen were sharply restrained and seemed drained of their usual optimism. Hag simply told a friend in Capitol Hill, "We are not naive."

FRIDAY, AUG. 2: With Hag's backing, St. Clair made it clear to the President that he would resign unless the tapes were produced and Nixon acknowledged publicly that he, not St. Clair, had withheld them. The President seemed to agree, but delayed decision. Nixon headed for Camp David that evening.

SATURDAY, SUNDAY, AUG. 3, 4: As Carly Davis, the President's confidant, began telling the tapes out and facing resignation, or standing and fighting, perhaps by making a partial confession.

MONDAY, AUG. 5: Hag, St. Clair and Bushnell publicly but firmly told the President they could not defend him if the tapes weren't released. A routine morning news briefing was canceled but a statement was scheduled for the afternoon. At 4 p.m. Nixon's statement, acknowledging his role in the cover-up, was released. The transcript of the June 30, 1972 tapes was released an hour later. Almost immediately, the White House was rocked by what seemed like an earthquake of unfavorable reaction. One by one, Nixon's supporters in Congress abandoned his defense.

Was Justice Done

1968 campaign, and the 37th President of the United States. It was the first time in the 185-year history of the office that a chief executive resigned his office.

Nixon said he began his presidency 3 1/2 years ago by dedicating his service to the furtherance of peace. "I've done my very best... to be true to that pledge," he said.

Additional Nixon Stories, Pictures Appear On B1-4

Three voting generations of Americans had known Nixon a national figure. To the generation of the 1950s, he was the legendary, then anti-Communist member of the House Un-American Activities Committee who pushed the case against Alger Hiss, a State Department official accused of having betrayed the Communist Party.

The children of that generation cast their first votes in the election where he, Dwight D. Eisenhower's young mate, beat his "Check speech" when he was accused of having a secret slash in the budget.

And the fathers of the nation watched him rise to the governorship in 1962, to emerge as a political force through his speaking tours.

BRYAN DOBBS, the district Congressman removed who was only a year from the Democratic runoff, said he would accept the Democratic nomination for governor place Kessel in the 11th district in Durham, N.C. when he heard the news.

NIXON RESIGNS

Sportburg, S.C. 29301—Friday, August 9, 1974

Gerald Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen... the White House, before...

On January 20, 1972,
Richard M. Nixon took the oath of office for his second term as President of the United States.
Twenty-one months later,
Vice-President Agnew resigned because of a tax evasion scandal. In December, Gerald Ford took over the office, holding it for only eight months before President Nixon announced his resignation. It came on August 9, 1974, as a result of the Watergate break in.
An upset and perplexed nation would turn to President Ford for direction and restoration.

Current Events Govern

Besides learning names, dates, and locations; many history students were provided with a better insight into the past by watching films and doing research work. Current events, such as inflation, recession, political campaigns, and the energy crisis were discussed in many classes.

While U. S. and world history were required, electives included western civilization, political science, sociology, government, and psychology. Psychology 101 provided college credit for many students.

Juror Barbara Crocker is sworn in as government classes practice legal court procedures.

Contemporary events are displayed on bulletin boards to keep students aware of world happenings.

Keith Tipton and Eddie Simmons check sources for information to be used for research papers on World War II.

Sophomore Ann Fuller displays Dorman spirit as she waits for the bell to ring in her world history class.

Senator Mark Chlystun points out the guilty party as he is approached by District Attorney Ed Lawson.

Council Sells Directories

Twice a month, student council members assembled to discuss different projects. Ways to improve the well being of the student body in their attitude toward school spirit and ways to encourage participation in different activities were projects discussed.

President Leon Michael attended a workshop at Brevard Jr. College October 14-16. He and Vice-President Gail Boler, along with the advisers, attended the State Student Council Convention in Charleston.

Student Council projects included selling Student Directories, providing student handbooks, and selling football programs at the home games.

Superintendent L. E. Gable challenges the student body to make success their goal.

Taking part in Student Council Installation, Marie Fraley, sophomore Vice-President, makes sure her candle is completely lit before taking her place in line.

Mr. Phillips and members of the Student Council arrange the candles for the Installation Ceremony.

Advisers and executive officers are Miss Myra Greene-adviser; Gail Boler, Vicki Lee, Leon Michael, Gayle Whiteside, Candy Fortenberry, Mr. Jack Phillips-Adviser.

Let's Take a Vote

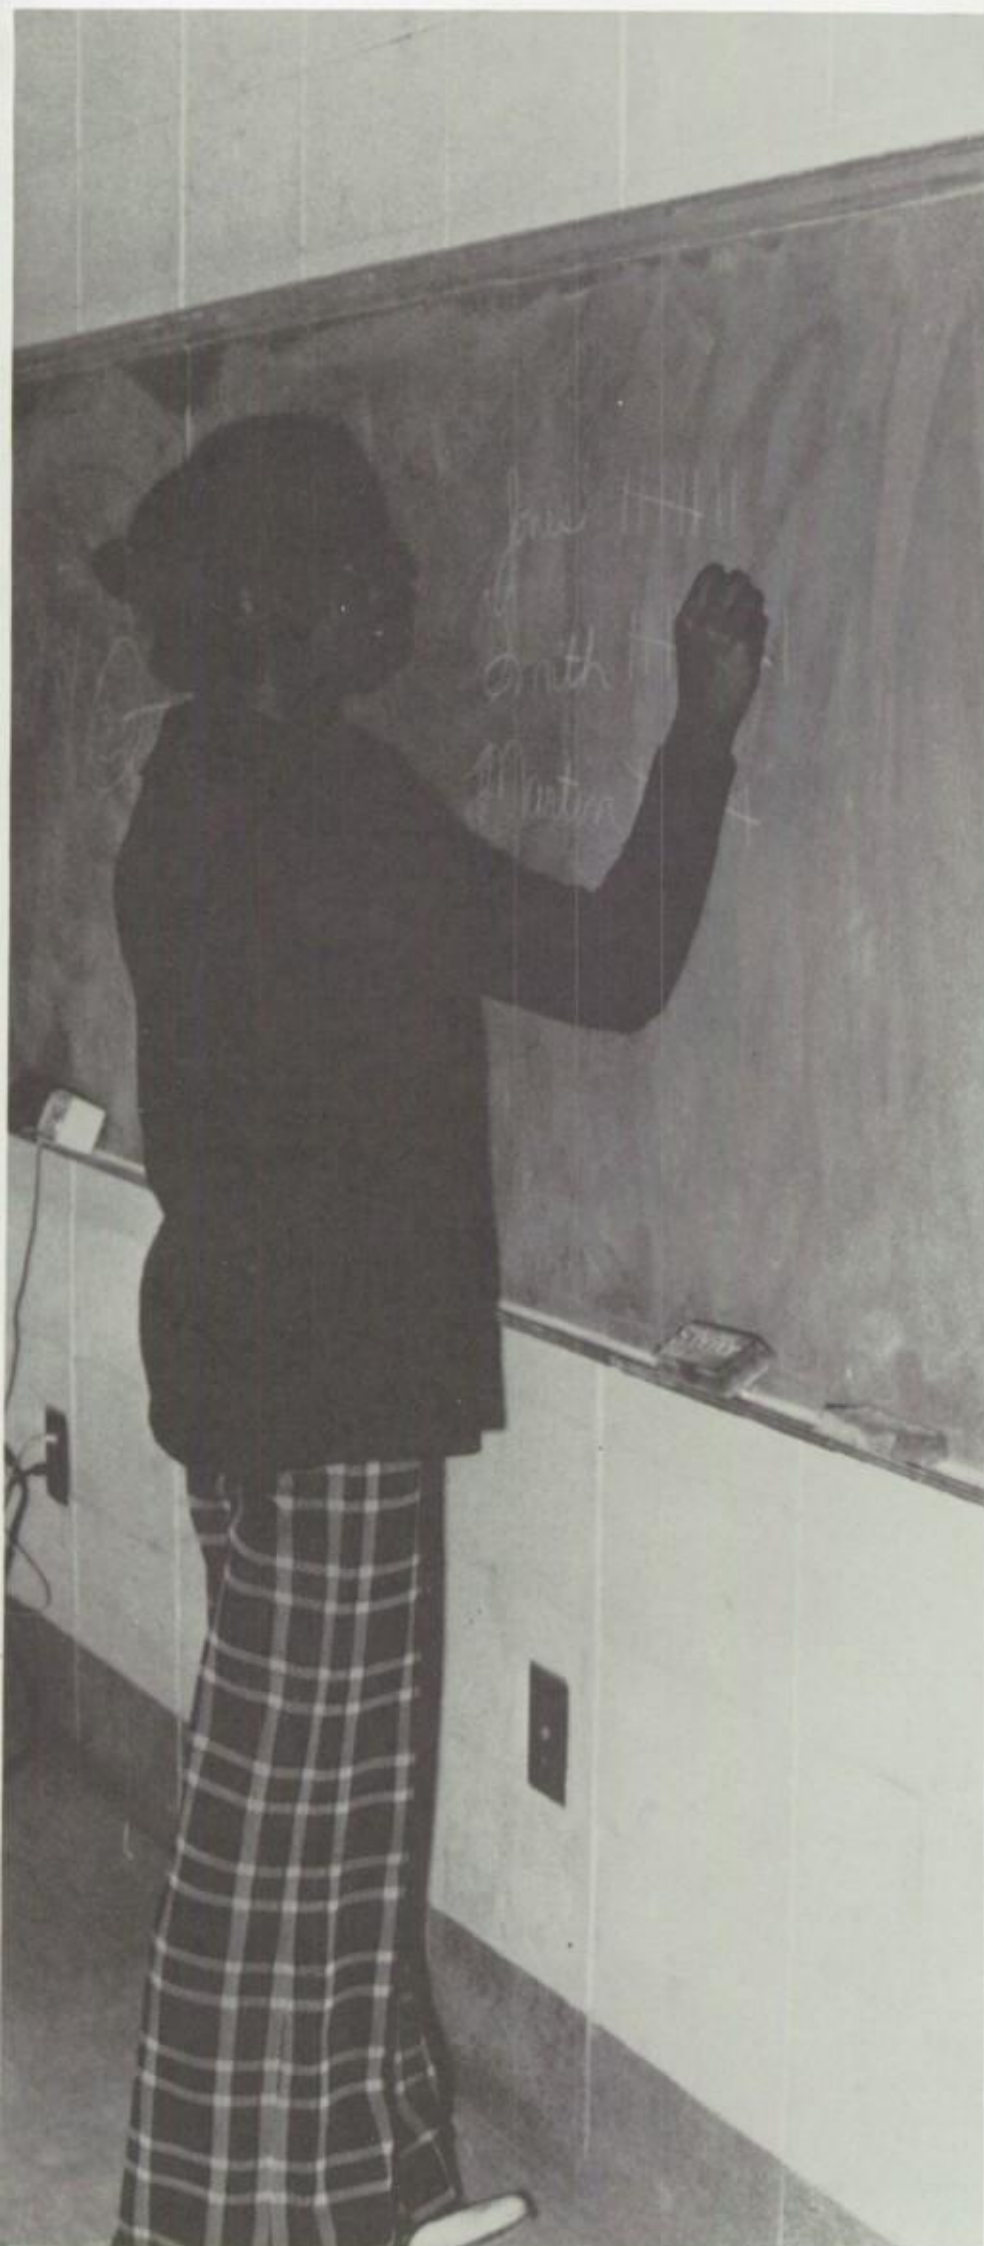

Registration slips were checked and curtains closed as Dorman students experienced the use of voting machines—many for the first time. This mode of voting was used to elect senior, junior, and student body officers. Homeroom and club officers were named to position by the show of hands. Homeroom presidents represented their first period classes at monthly meetings. Paper ballots were used as students nominated their choices for homecoming court.

Dorman lost history teacher

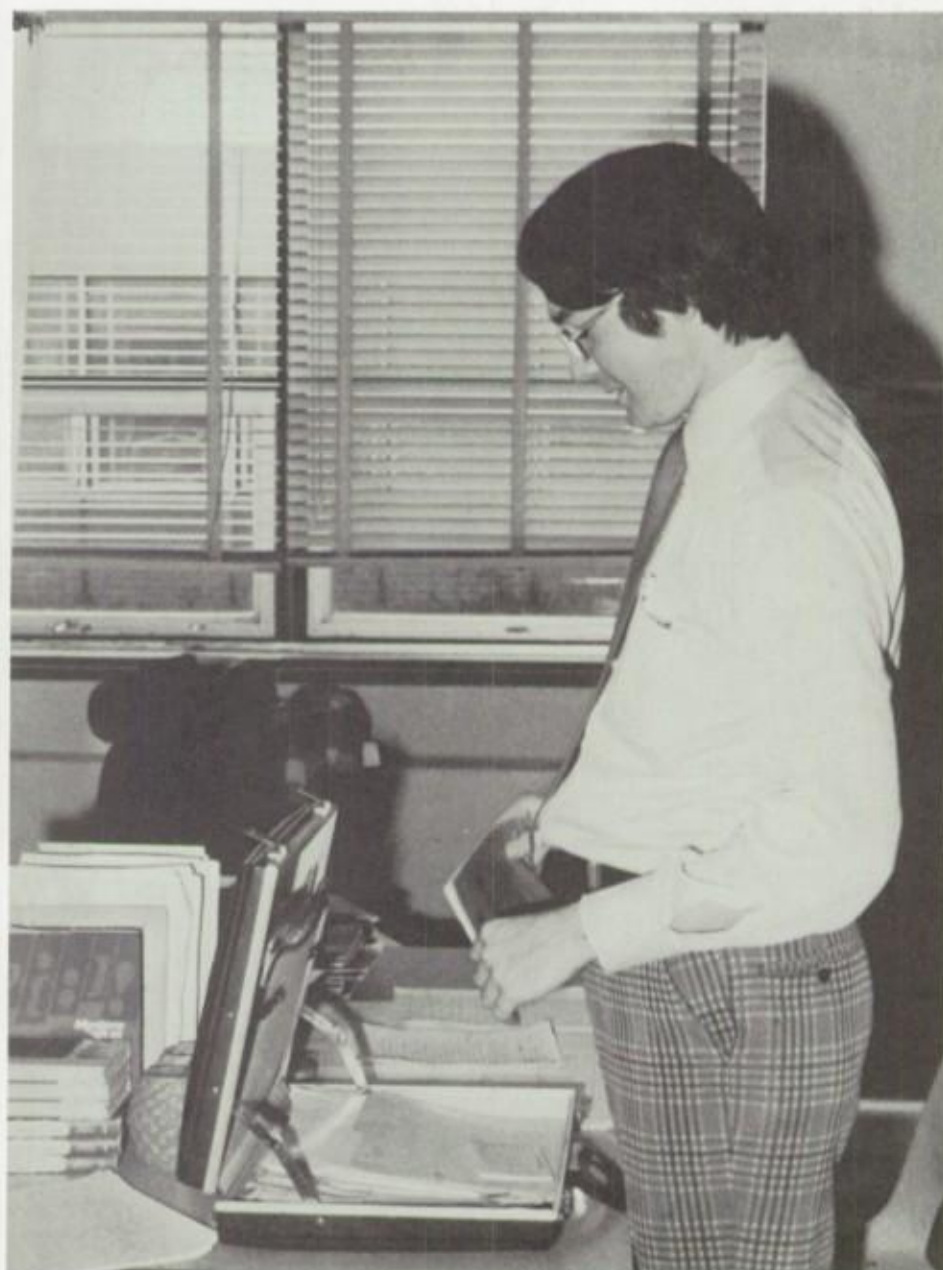

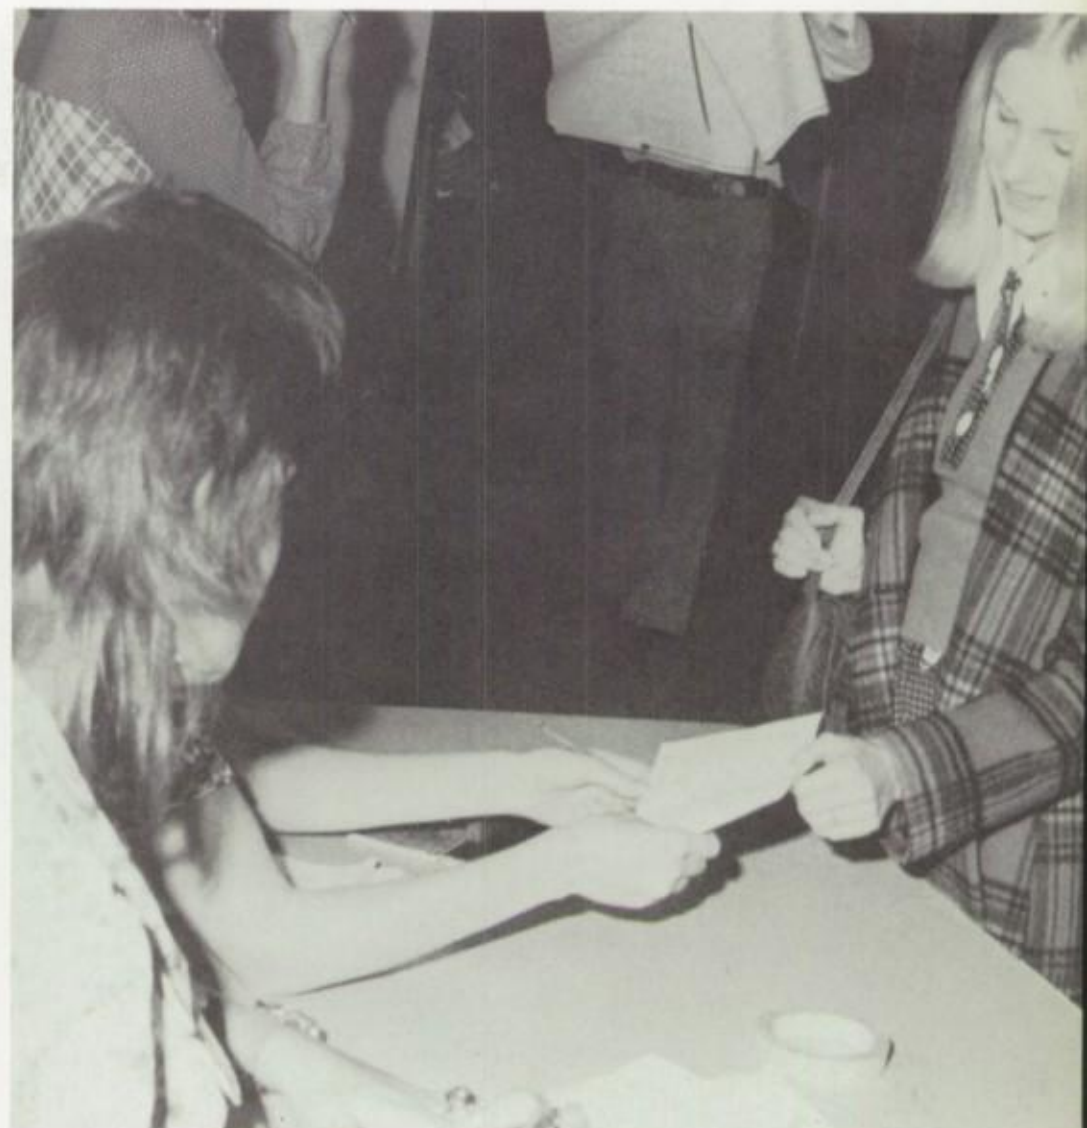

Danny Bruce to the State Legislature when he was elected to serve District 38. District Six voters expressed their opinions by electing Mr. Thomas M. Ariail to the County Board of Education.

Many Dorman students were disappointed when it was announced that Charles "Pug" Ravenel was ineligible to run for the governor of South Carolina because of residency requirements. In a final analysis many voters went Republican by ordaining Jim Edwards as governor.

Adviser Mr. William Dempsey introduces the guest speaker before the installation ceremony begins.

The English Department was relieved of some of its work as Beta Club members helped with the mini-courses and the wheel-dex cards. Members enjoyed the talk of Dean Stephens, of Wofford, at the induction ceremony. New members were asked to pay dues of $7.50 when accepting membership. A 3.0 grade point ratio had to be maintained for members to remain in the club.

The Dorman Chapter took part in the Saturday's invocation while attending the State Convention on February 14 and 15.

Wesley Collins, a geometry student, watches carefully as triangles are proven congruent.

Math students think of questions to ask about homework before class begins.

Erasers wore down and scrap paper piled up as students tried to solve problems ranging from the most difficult calculus to everyday math. Confused faces were a familiar sight as attempts were made to understand new concepts and ideas. Patience was maintained in geometry classes despite slipping compasses and unprovable proofs. Algebra and trig students soon learned that x's and y's were more than letters of the alphabet. Amid the work of advanced math, students found it necessary to review simple operations with decimals and fractions.

As the year progressed and work became more involved, students hoped for a break to lessen the load. Interruptions, such as push-ups performed by a teacher helped to alleviate this. Even though the work seemed impossible at times, it would prove useful in later years.

Smells of formaldehyde filled biology classes as first year students were faced with the dissection of frogs and earth-worms.

Run down batteries of calculators caused frustration to be seen among chemistry and physics students. Experimental techniques could not be practiced until accuracy had been achieved in the use of microscopes, bunsen burners, and slide rules.

The Science Club changed hands as Mr. Crain became the new adviser. A trip to the Medical University in Charleston provided members with an insight into future medical careers.

Coach Walter English gets his point across while stressing the importance of first aid.

Exercise and Be Healthy

P. E. students were given the most versatile year yet as the health and physical education courses were switched every 4½ weeks. This gave a change of pace and kept things interesting. In health, everything from care of the human body to first aid was taught. P. E. opened skills in football, basketball, and volleyball. Exercises emphasized physical fitness and muscle tone; while team sports urged competitiveness and sportsmanship. Tumbling and building human pyramids brought out quickness and agility in the boys. At the same time, girls learned that the effectiveness of the spike depended largely on the set up. Members of Mrs. Campbell's and Mrs. Leonard's classes were given the opportunity to learn beginner techniques in horseback riding. Coach Arnold and Coach English refereed many games as "shirts" took on "skins" each day during basketball season.

Fast breaks keep the pace going in Mrs. Campbell's 2nd period class.

An exception to regular club meetings came into view as members presented their annual horse show. Experienced riders demonstrated correct riding procedures in English and Western riding styles. Various techniques and skills, such as jumping and bareback riding were also performed. Trips were made to local ranches allowing members to examine the farms and the horses.

GAA

The Girls' Athletic Association gave 100 females an opportunity to play volleyball, football, and track. Twelve girls were allowed to travel to Palmetto High School and compete in a regional volleyball tournament. On November 21 the Powderpuff team went out to tackle the GAA of Spartanburg High School with a decisive victory of 44-14.

Proceeds from this event plus money gained from calendar sales was used to set up an athletic scholarship for an outstanding member of the club.

For the first time, girls were permitted to earn club letters. These letters could be acquired by receiving points given according to individual participation in club activities.

No Layoffs at RDA

For the first time in the history of R. D. Anderson, students were given the option of driving to the Vocational School instead of riding the bus. Even though several of the faculty members changed, the courses remained the same. Many students took advantage of occupational training.

Dorman students enrolled in one or two year courses of drafting, textiles, industrial sewing, masonry, auto mechanics, practical nursing and many others. At R. D. Anderson students could learn useful and demanding trades, proving that everyone does not necessarily have to attend college.

Under the direction of Mr. K. O. Couch, R. D. Anderson served Districts 4, 5, and 6.

Students showed an increasing interest in art appreciation as the Art Club had a record membership of 30 members for the 1974-75 year. A combination of first, second, and honorable mention premiums went to seven members for their contributions to the Piedmont Interstate Fair.

Originality was the key for students who enrolled in the various types of art classes. Creative works were displayed in the forms of drawings, paintings, macrame, and ceramics. These crafts, exhibited in the main lobby, were enjoyed by fellow students and faculty throughout the year.

Booster Club donations and long, hard hours of working and selling made it possible for the band to tour parts of Canada during the summer. With the summer vacation, came hot, sultry days of practice for the 1974-75 year. The working hours paid off, however, as the increase in performance and members was proudly hailed after their first half-time presentation.

A change in style and formation, in order to provide back-up music for the Seniors Chuck Bagwell and Eddie Lawson compare lottery numbers in hope that they will be first in line.

Seniors have time for conversation as they wait to register for the nine-weeks mini-courses.

Mini-Course Lottery

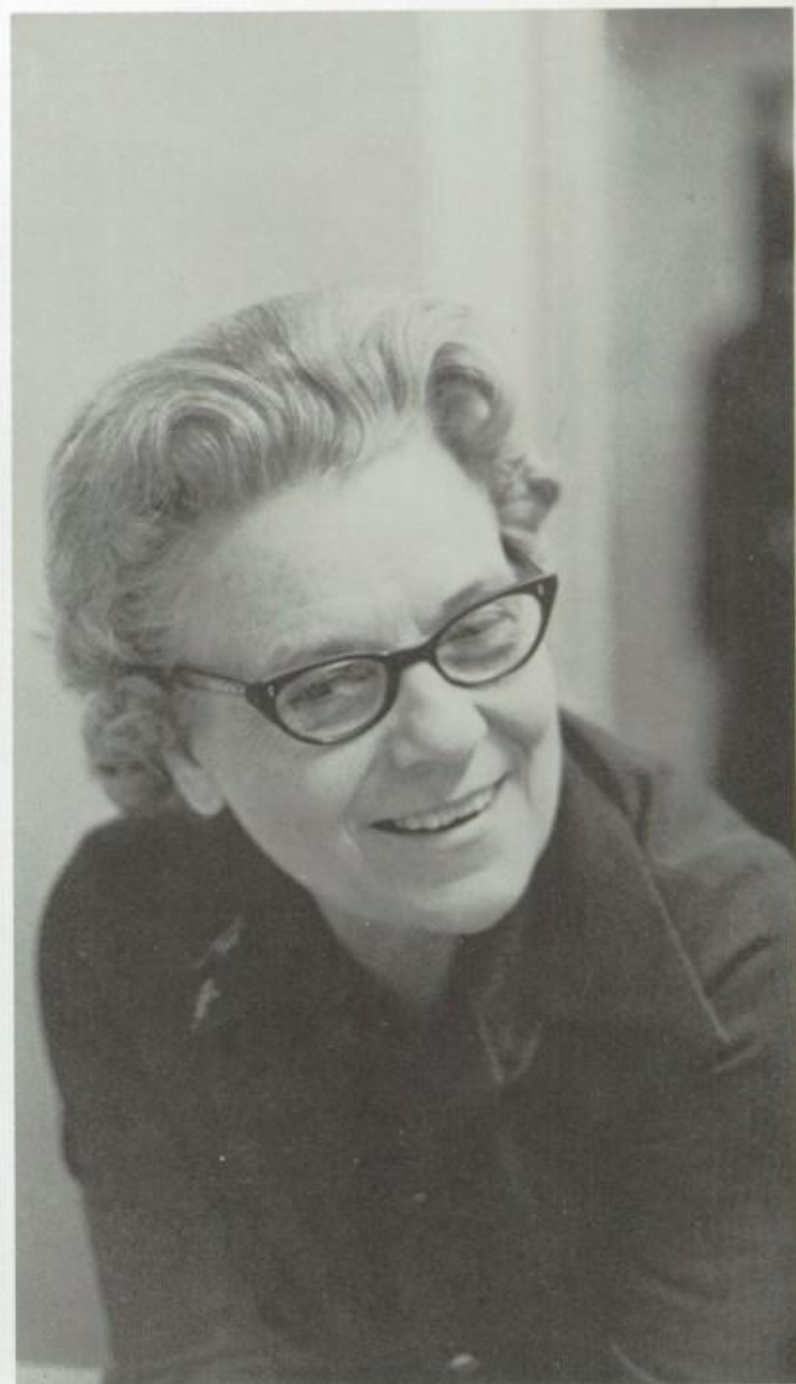

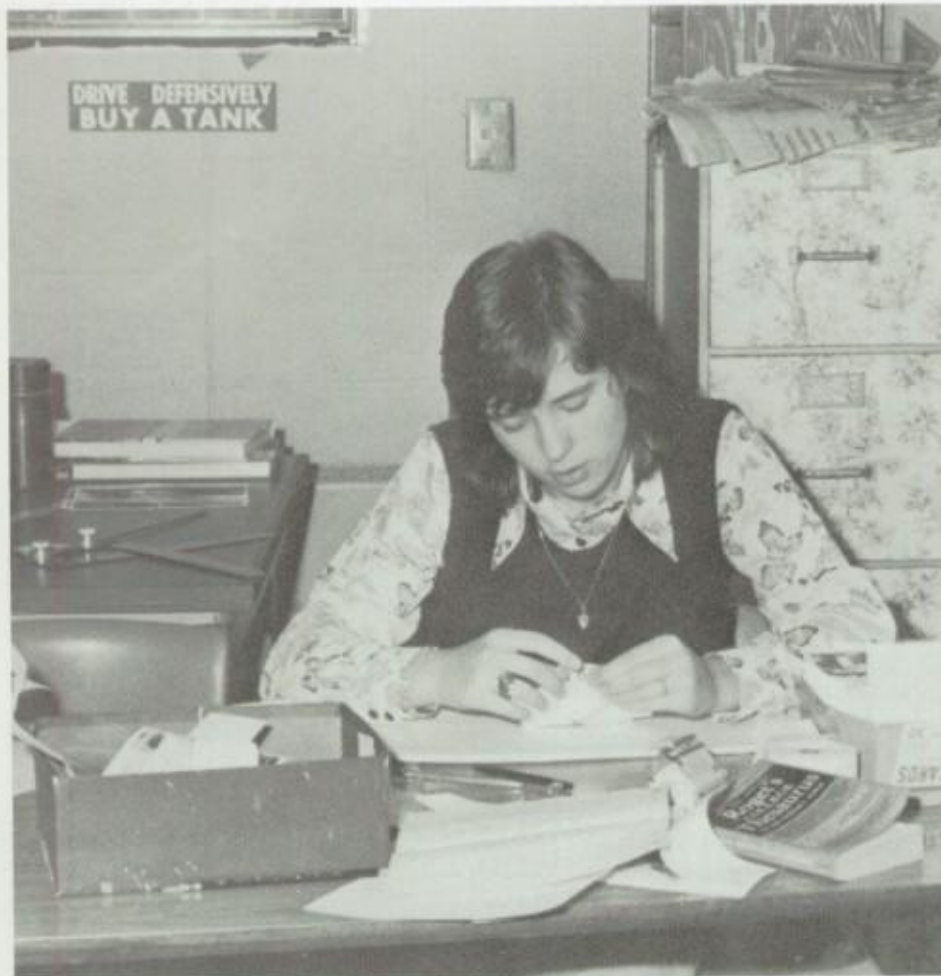

What number are you? This became a familiar question as students drew numbers to designate their position in the mini-course lottery. The lower the number the better the chance of getting to choose a course you wanted. Seniors had an advantage by holding one through 100 during each class period. Juniors followed being numbered 101 through 200. At the beginning of second semester, sophomores were forced to take the leftovers with numbers 201 through 300. A choice between two sets of graduation requirements was handed out and new courses were added to the previous ones.

"Research Paper" was sought by many college-bound students when it was discovered that this was necessary for graduation. Students considered "Play Production" an interesting and enjoyable course, but only a handful were able to take this course due to the limited time it was offered.

The yearbook staff increased by one member as work on the 1975 book began in the spring. A week of sleepless nights at Camp Bonclarken paid off with armfuls of layouts and new ideas for the '75 VANGUARD. While the economy problems found businesses coming up short, this meant ad troubles also for the staff. To be at the right time and place for pictures, write copy and have it all perfected for the February deadline, seemed unachievable at times. Seeing the first copy lifted all apprehension.

Cavalier-Self Made

Working all day and selling only one ad . . . working late to meet a deadline . . . losing layouts and articles . . . were only a few of the obstacles the CAVALIER had to overcome.

For the first time the newspaper staff set their own type, sending it to the printers ready to photograph and run. A six weeks' course at R. D. Anderson in graphic arts broadened the staffs' knowledge of this technique.

From the sale of stationery and cupcakes, a new camera was purchased. The CAVALIER is a member of the S.I.P.A. and the S.C.S.P.A. of which editor, Donna Sparks, is vice-president. Alex Barrett won "Sports Story of the Month" from the S.C.S.P.A.

School spirit was enticed by the French and Spanish classes when they participated in making slogans for athletic events.

Early dismissal finds senior Kenneth Holcombe at McDonald's in spite of inflationary prices.

The amount of change coming back from a dollar decreased as higher prices plagued students eating in the lunchroom.

Stickers are seen as a reminder of the increase candy bar prices.

INFLATION

The increase in gold prices make it necessary for juniors to place ring orders early.

Cityslicker inflation reached the farmers as the price of lunches increased from $.45 to $.55, but the taste of food stayed the same. With McDonald's waiting patiently on the hill, many students risked the chance of getting caught by administrators and escaped to have lunch with "Ronald." While greedily swallowing a hamburger or gulping down an icy coke, it was found that no longer did change come back from your dollar.

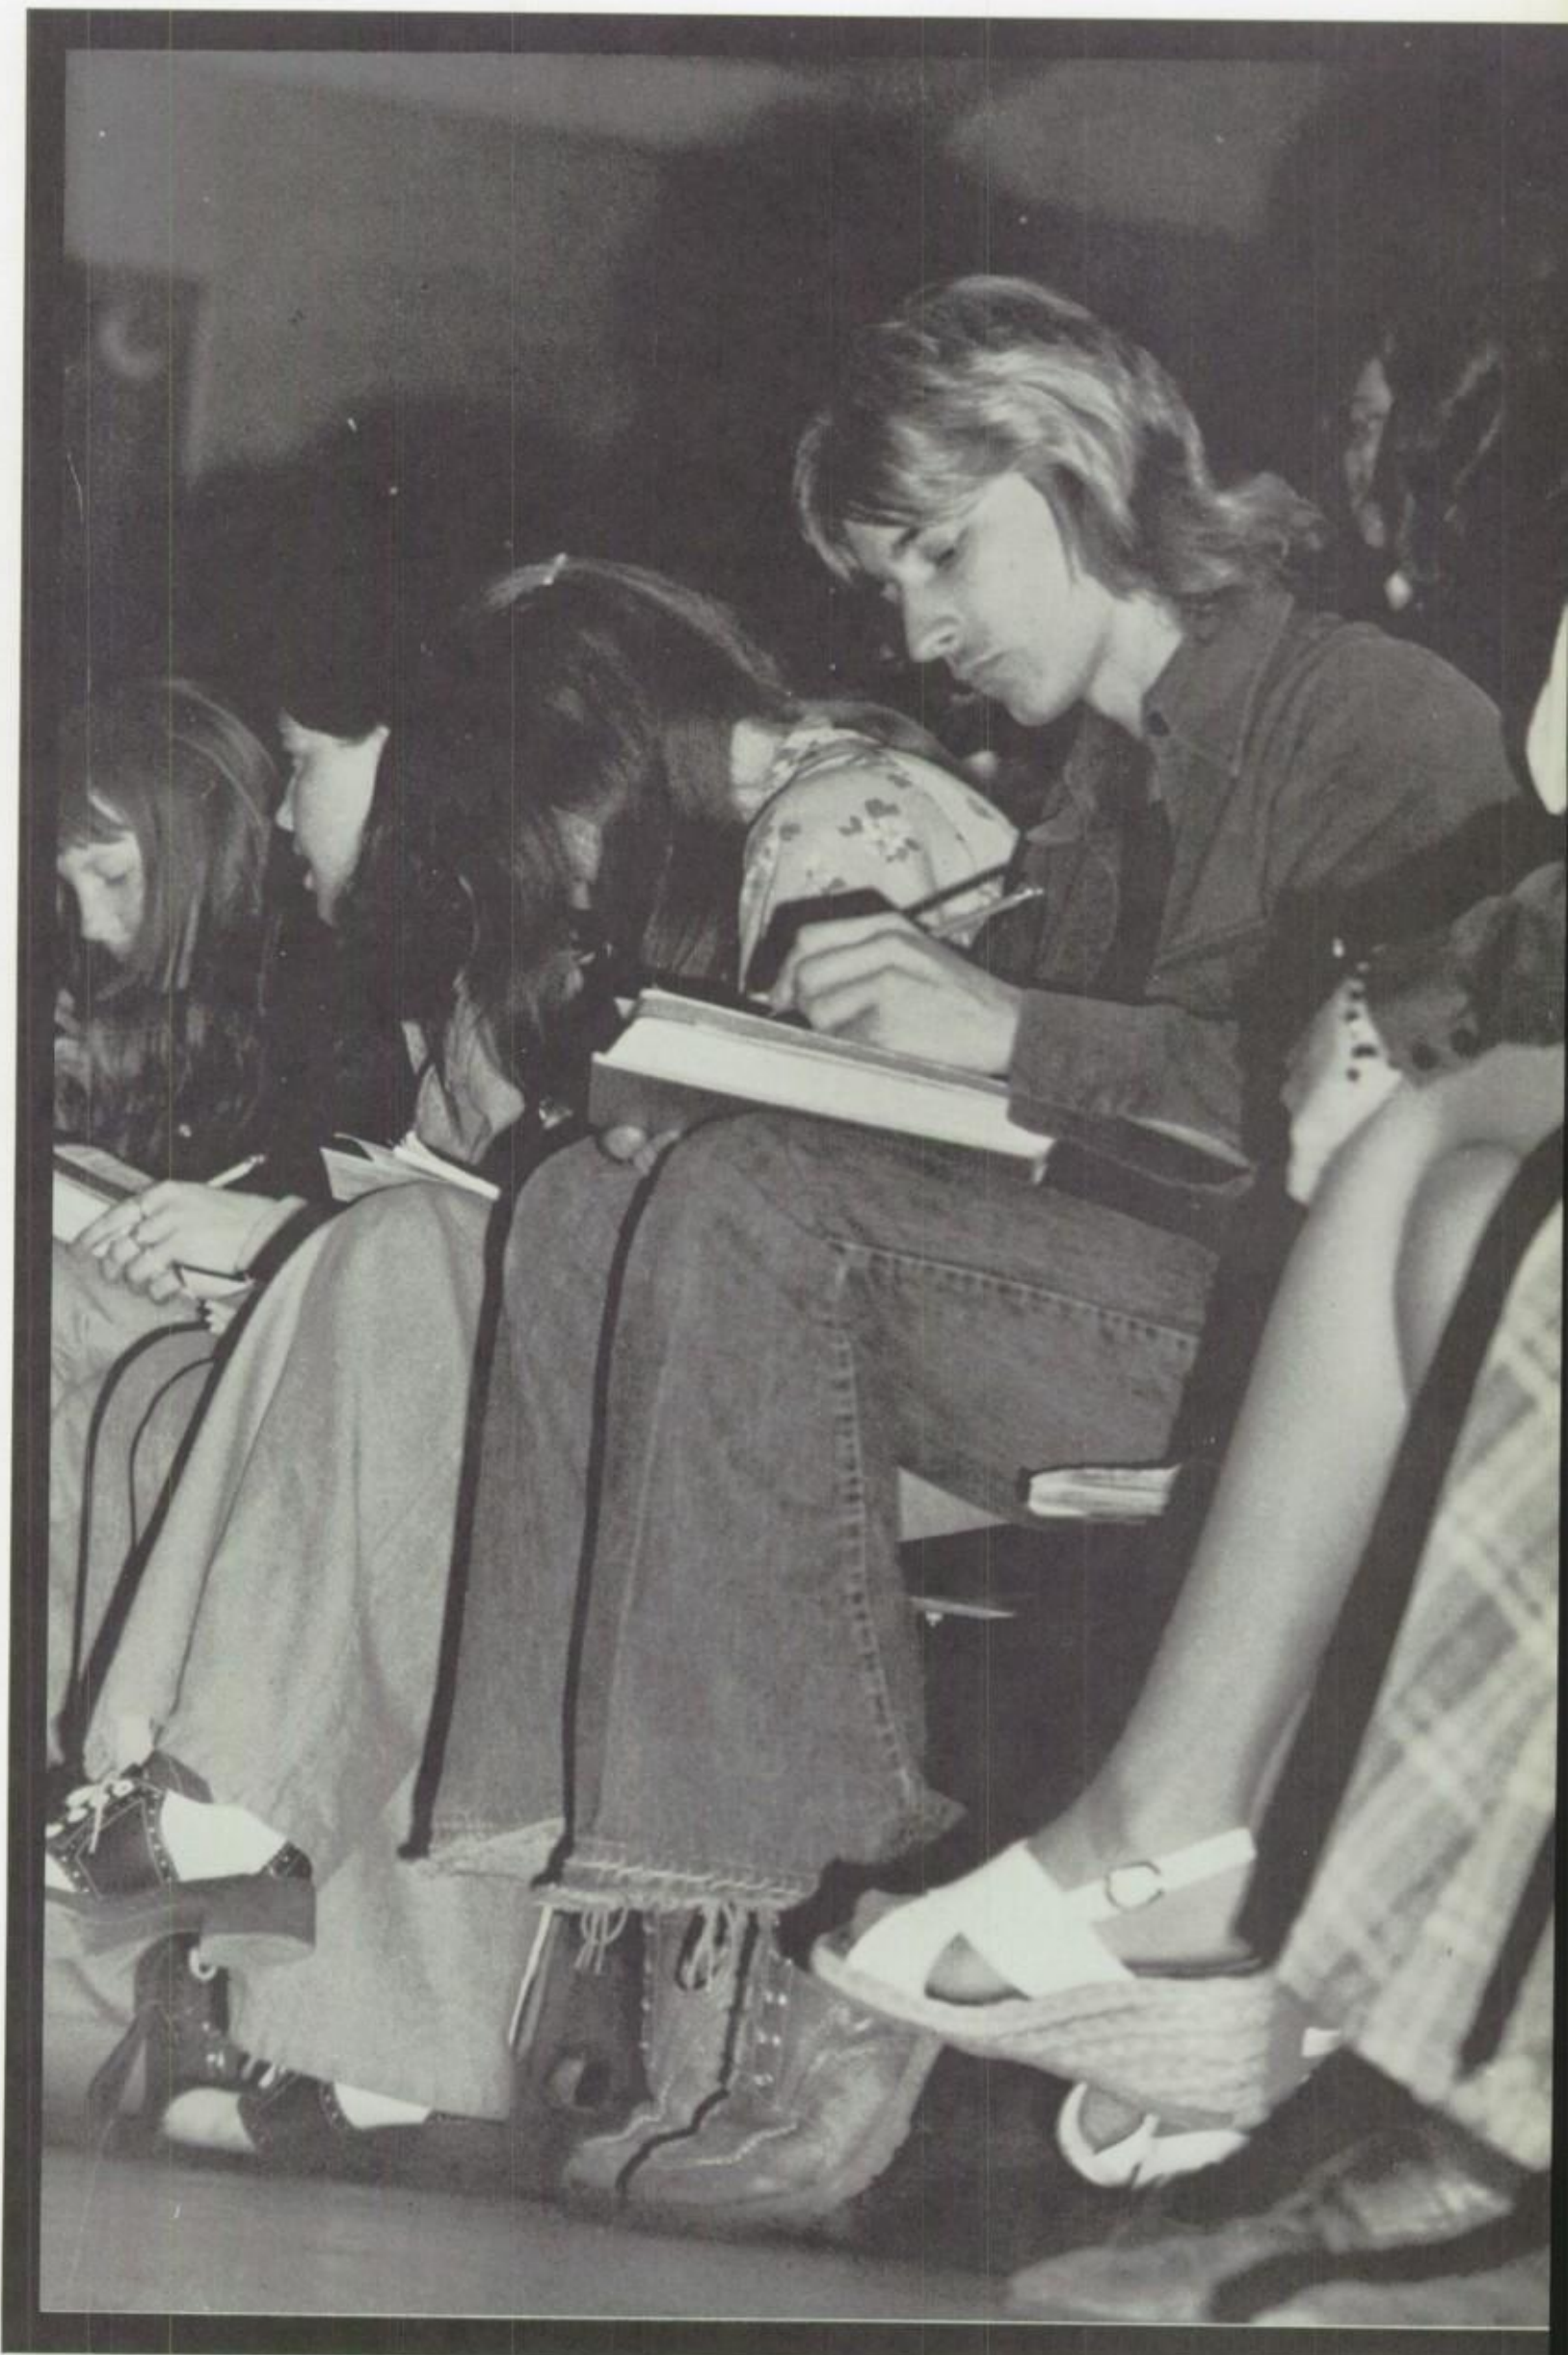

The third option was packaged food from the canteen alias "Baboon Saloon" only to find that a nickel increase was slapped on all products.

The habit of purchasing candy sold by numerous clubs was curbed by that familiar sneakthief—INFLATION!

Juniors and seniors found hiking prices in more places than just food services.

Graduation announcements rose two cents a piece. This does not sound like a lot until it is multiplied by 50 or 75. Juniors found themselves paying over $10 more for their rings than did the previous class.

The ultimatum offered by inflation was simple, either pay the price or do without!

Once again the Business Careers Club chose the task of heading the annual magazine drive. Money, T.V. Pets, unicyles, and mascot shirts were awarded daily to urge each student to do his part. All students who sold 5 or more subscriptions were given the opportunity to relax from school for a few hours as the Business Careers treated them to see "Oliver".

Although the goal of $15,000.00 was not reached, the response was good and it became necessary to extend the drive for an extra week.

It was found that it is better to give than to receive since for a service project the club helped a needy family with food, clothing, and toys during the Christmas season.

Weather or Not

Iceicles form on the espalier pyracantha in front of the school as temperatures dropped to 30°F.

Neither rain, sleet, snow, nor hail prevented students from coming to Dorman High School. That seemed to be the case when a three-day ice storm swept over the Spartanburg area. The ice was not bad enough to force the closing of school; just bad enough to make people miserable.

When it wasn't sleeting it was raining, and at several ballgames raincoats and umbrellas were needed to provide adequate protection.

However, amid tornado warnings and snowflakes, a few "pretty" days did appear. Many days caught students returning to cars to cut off lights when foggy mornings engulfed Cavalier Country.

The total weather picture was unpredictable; one day it may be 74° and that night dip into the 20's; but every day was a school day.

They served the school and community by participating in a Halloween Party given for the Charles Lea Center, and raising funds for Muscular Dystrophy and the Cancer-Bike-A-Thon with the Jr. Civitans.

Information on referendums in the general elections was also distributed by both clubs. To finance their trip to the annual convention, the Civitans collected dues and sold "Cavalier" key chains.

In December the Dorman Chapter, although considered a service club showed their athletic ability when they participated in the state-wide tennis tournament.

Anchor members, Vicky Tuck and Pam Adair, await the processional of seniors on "Honors" Day to present them with the traditional blue carnation.

"A quarter for one small coke!" "Don't you have anything smaller than a $20?" "Out of peanuts already?" were remarks all Anchor members heard at home football games. Members sacrificed seeing games to operate the concession stands. Money from candy sales was used to send fruit baskets to needy families at Thanksgiving and to help with the Paul M. Dorman Scholarship fund. With a record membership of 42, the club performed many services for the school and community. The biting cold of late November found members collecting for Muscular Dystrophy. Students were aided in getting jobs during the summer through the YES program.

Services to the school included decorating for Honors Day and acting as guides for Back-to-School night.

Third row: Marcia Williams, Johnny Stevens, Otis Kerns, Paul Fraley, George Hughston, Cheryl Justice, Ann Fuller, Debbie Beers.

Under the direction of Mrs. Helen Creech, the Teens for Christ started its third year at Dorman by not requiring membership in the club. Any student was invited to attend the monthly meetings to plan projects. One project was a Love Offering which was collected at Christmas time.

Twelve members and a new adviser, Mr. Kenneth Mason, were involved in community projects such as selling pins. Meetings held after school and attending Rotary luncheons every two weeks were other activities of the Interact Club.

As the bulletin is read, Kim Smith remembers the MOD meeting after school.

Lioness Leads Leo

The Leo Club, under the sponsorship of a lady adviser, Miss Linda Dearybury, continued their traditional projects of the father club, the Lions Club. These projects included selling brooms, operating a fair booth, and collecting eye glasses.

One of the Key Club projects, selling school auto plates, was promoted when South Carolina decided to issue only one plate. Some of their other projects included selling annual covers, peanut brittle, and helping a poverty-stricken family. Affiliated with the Spartanburg Kiwanis Club and Key International, members attended monthly luncheons.

Circulation

Approximately 1,432 people were Dorman High School. They could be seen at ballgames and at club meetings. Familiar faces met each day in classrooms and hallways. Personalities circulated around campus to become involved in all facets of school life. There were always times of compatibility as well as times of difference. The good and the bad were accepted by all to be looked upon as just one more step to maturity.

District Plans Expansion

From hiring teachers to preparing budgets and setting rules, the Superintendent, his assistants, and the Board of Trustees worked together to assure faculty and students that Dorman High School and Spartanburg County School District Six would be "second to none." To build a program of education adequate to meet the needs of all youth was the goal toward which they worked.

Along with these responsibilities, the board met the second Tuesday in each month, as well as some call meetings, to review legislative policies and to review and revise the school policies as the needs demanded. Much time was spent in making plans for future additions at Dorman High.

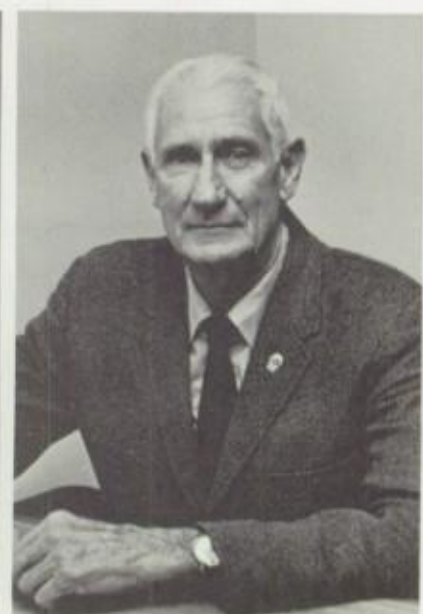

As the reopening of school approached, the administrative staff worked to assure that faculty, curriculum, and personnel were ready for the beginning of another year.

Supervising both student and faculty activities and working closely with the District Administration were some of the jobs included in the Dorman High School Administrative Staff's responsibilities. Interests in individual students and their future successes were shown by administrators as they inquired about plans after graduation, or as they discussed with students their future plans.

Led by Mr. Allen O. Clark, Principal, the administrators worked during the summer months preparing schedules, ordering books and other instructional materials, and mapping curriculums so that all would be ready when school began in late August.

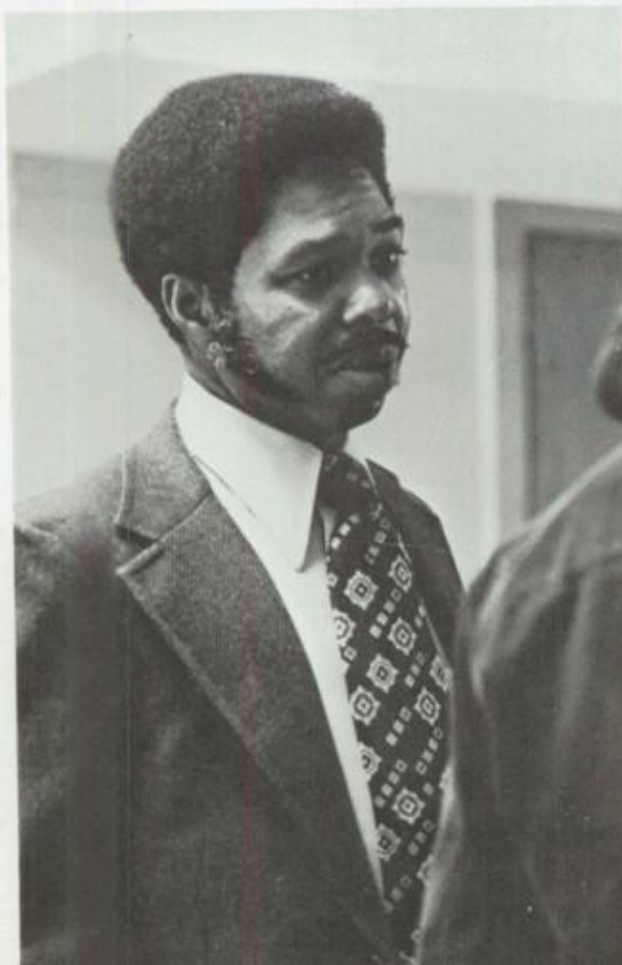

Attending and supervising all extra-curricular activities extended their days much longer than the 3:00 P.M., dismissal time of the student body.

Thomas Mack fills out information for ordering senior accessories.

Money becomes short as seniors were asked to "fork out" dollar after dollar for Senior expenses.

"How much did you say? "I thought I'd already paid for that!" These were only a few of the statements heard when the time came for seniors to wind up their final year. It all began with the purchasing of rings in the 11th grade. Orders were placed for senior accessories to be paid for upon arrival. Five dollars had to be given before orders could be placed for personal cards. When the senior year finally arrived, it was met with still more expenses: deposits for annuals were made; senior pictures were taken; and a little later Delmar pictures were snapped. Although it wasn't necessary to purchase these, most seniors felt pressure from home to buy this last set of school pictures. Invitations were ordered—with hopes that friends and relatives would replenish the dwindling supply of money—come graduation time. Speaking of graduation—caps and gowns had to be rented by all or else someone would be out of place; and even the sheepskin itself was paid for by "yours truly." Was it once said that we are given the opportunity to go to a "free" public institution? Think twice?

Robert Frye checks to make sure he has correct change before going to pay for personal cards.

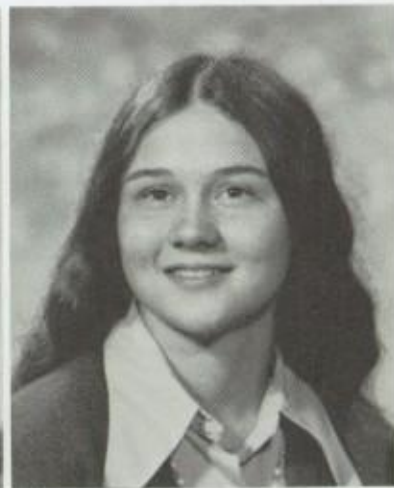

Mrs. Gable approves a check given to her by Bobby Culbreth for his senior pictures.

Srs. Tour Colleges

Pencil points became dull as rows and rows of circles on answer sheets were hurriedly filled in. Irritated looks were on students' faces when time was called and there were two pages still unfinished. Students felt relief when the test paper was finally handed in.

The administering of the PSAT caused late sleepers to sacrifice their Saturday morning in order to arrive at school by 8:00 A.M. Some students complained of the $3.50 fee, although they knew the experience would be helpful in future testing.

When the scores finally came back, some were disappointed, some were surprised at their high scores, and still others were elated.

Juniors filled the study hall and library to take the ACT which provided an insight into future careers and abilities. Students tried to recall just how many times they had driven a tractor or operated a welding machine. Future plans were debated when scores revealed low abilities in chosen areas.

Instructions are explained by Mrs. Willie Carter to juniors taking ACT.

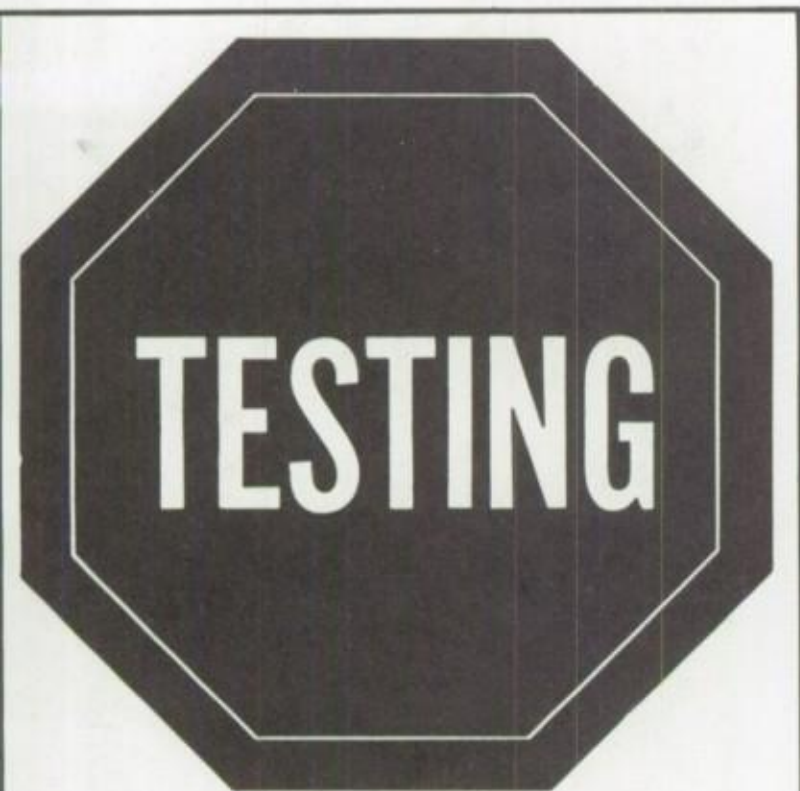

Juniors rush to finish the verbal section of the PSAT before time is called.

Alex Barrett looks over his SAT scores to find out how well he has done.

Signs like these are seen on the library and study hall doors as juniors are tested throughout the year.

Junior boys realize the importance of quiet surroundings when taking standardized tests.

The career planning tests, taken by juniors, supply information concerning future occupations.

Ring Ceremony Returns

Right 13-Left 21-Right?

"But I can't help it, Mrs. Maloney, my locker is in Wing C." "But my lock wouldn't open." These were justified excuses many sophs gave for being late to class.

Sophs taking gym were confronted with the problem of keeping combinations for gym lockers and hall lockers separate.

On registration day, sophs who were lucky enough to receive top lockers, knew they wouldn't have to go through bending down and being stepped on. Many looked forward to their senior year in hopes of getting a top locker.

On infrequent trips to their lockers, many sophs were bombarded by books and papers due to the requirement of sharing lockers.

Sharing a locker presents the problem of which book is whose as students meet between classes.

Sophomores consider themselves lucky as they received top lockers when entering Dorman for the first time.

Stephanie Brannon and Reggie Poole decide which books are needed for the next class.

Books and papers stack up as sophomores are asked to share bottom lockers.

Lockers in Wing C are an inconvenience for those with classes in Wings A and B.

Clean Sweep

School grounds and hallways were kept clean by a nine-member custodial staff. Hours were spent sweeping floors and emptying trash cans. The second shift remained after school to continue their services and also to lock up after club meetings.

A team of seven prepared lunch daily for Dorman students. Last, but not least was "Lady," a constant companion to supervisors Mr. Guard Wyatt and Mr. Roy Seawright.

Custodians: Mr. Ernest Geter, Mr. Foster Means, Mr. Chester Jackson.

Mrs. Della Roper—Assistant lunchroom manager.

Mrs. Lorraine Blackwell—Lunchroom manager.

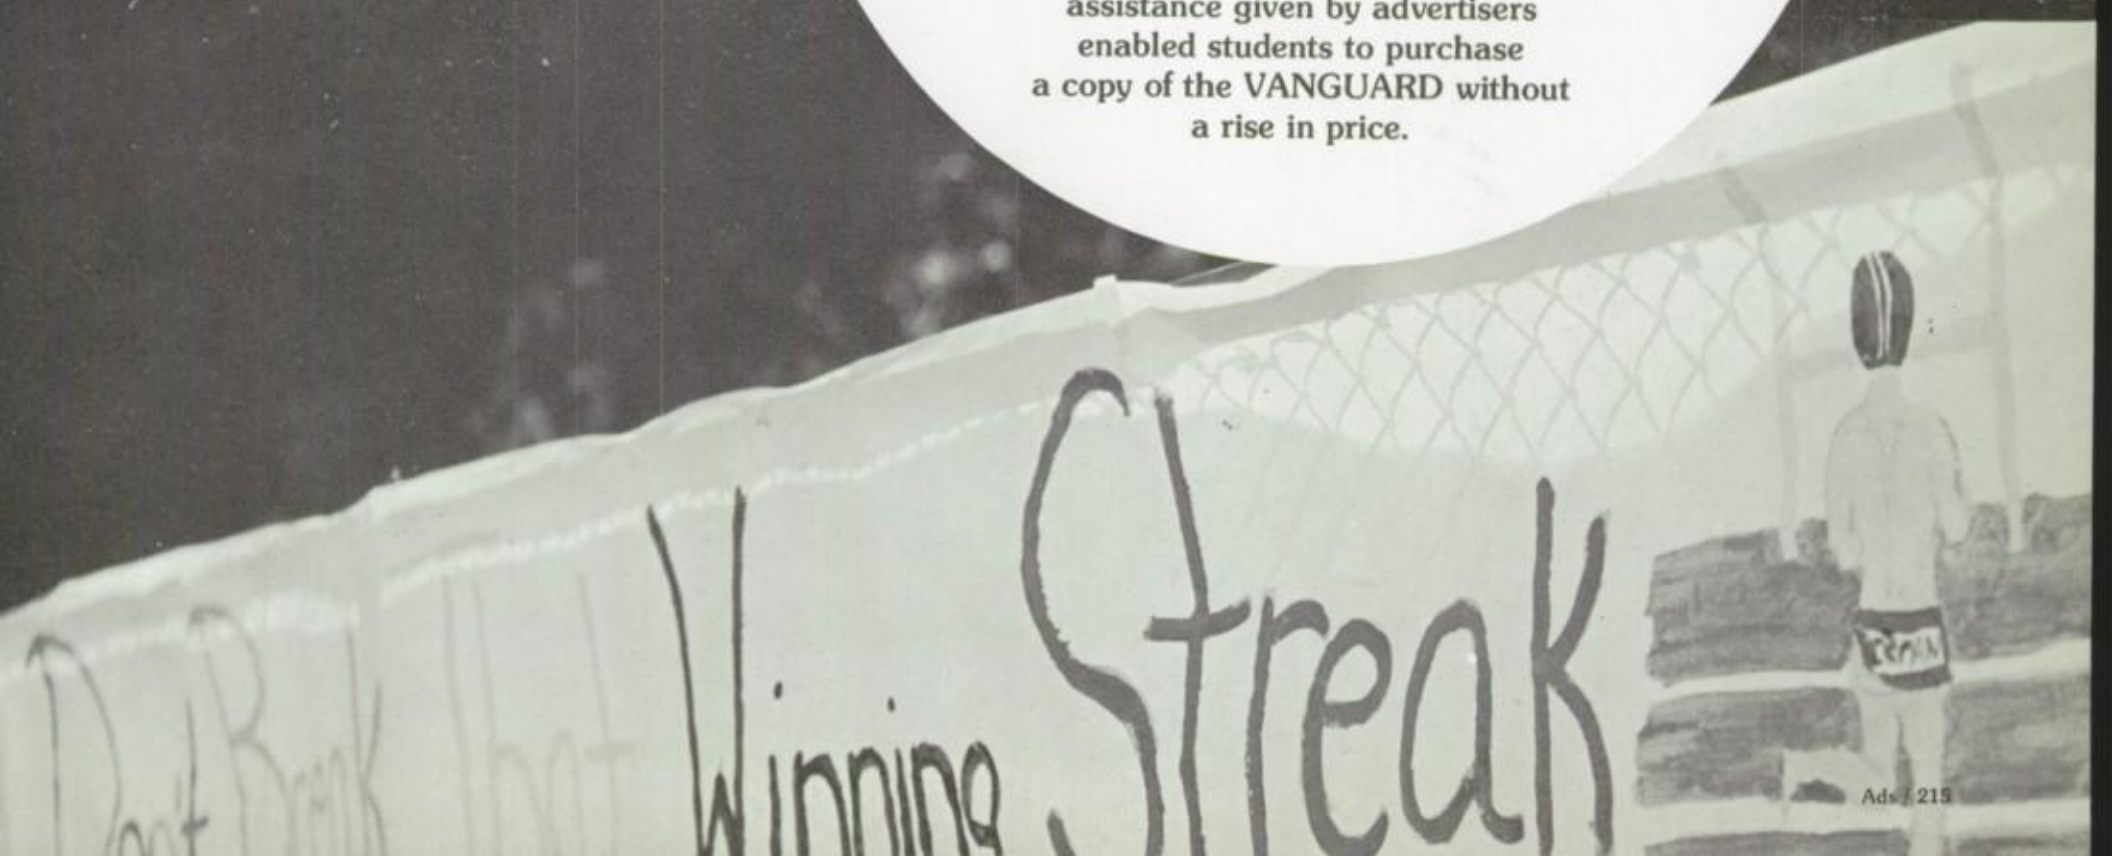

Custodians—Mr. Foster Means, Mr. Matthew Miller, Mr. McLaurin Davis.

Boundaries

Without the financial aid of small businesses and large corporations, the 1975 VANGUARD could not have been a success. Many small businesses arose in the Spartanburg area, but rising prices and the recession caused them not to be able to purchase ads even though they would have liked to lend assistance. The help that was given by all who participated was greatly appreciated. The assistance given by advertisers enabled students to purchase a copy of the VANGUARD without a rise in price.

CONGRATULATIONS, DORMAN GRADUATES!

We are proud of you, and extend best wishes to each of you for continued success.

If you are now considering a career, why not think of Textiles? South Carolina's largest industry offers exciting challenges, and unlimited opportunities for interested young people.

We are proud of our part in this progressive and important industry, and would welcome an opportunity to talk with you about your possible future in Textiles.

Progress Encompasses

District

As time progressed, building projects moved toward completion. Although modifications had to be made by residents as well as the student body, the many conveniences of these additions were appreciated.

What began as a year of confusion and doubt gradually evolved into a beginning era of progress for both commerce and "farmers."

Hail, Alma Mater!
Praises proudly sing
Of all the memories our school days bring.
Founded on dignity,
Honor, and liberty;
Gave knowledge to us all.
Hail to Dorman High!
